THE BEST EVER HELD.

South Weymouth Day of Good Cheer to its Aged People.

Sixteen years ago, when Rev. Mr. Van Clancy was pastor of the Union church at South Weymouth, he conceived the idea of devoting one of the days of the year to the entertainment of the aged people of that place, and he has since been able to carry out his idea. The celebration brought forth a permanent organization for the purpose of entertaining the aged people and the sixteenth anniversary and annual gathering was held in the Union church on Wednesday.

The list of officers and several committees have changed from time to time, but each succeeding board has tried to improve on the last. In doing a good thing for the old folks at home and the board of 1909 did themselves credit on Wednesday.

The reception began at 11 o'clock and at the moment many had gathered to grasp the hands of friends of their childhood, or those whom they had been associated with in later years.

A banquet is no small feature of the day and it followed the reception and the story of this banquet has been so often told that it is only necessary to say that the one of Wednesday was fully up to the high standard already established and nearly 200 enjoyed it. Now were the people forgotten by the Rev. Daniel W. Waldron of Boston, through whose hospitality everyone received the usual box of sweets.

The afternoon feature began at 2 o'clock in the auditorium of the church. After a short address of welcome by the president, F. Wilbur Lord, he introduced Mr. Van Clancy, the founder of the organization, who gave some pleasing remarks in regard to the early days and words of encouragement for the future.

Then came a new feature. Some time ago the Boston Post placed in the hands of the Stoughton, an elegant gold-headed ebony cane, to be given to the oldest inhabitant of the town and to the oldest inhabitant of the town and to the oldest inhabitant of the town.

The October number of Suburban Life combines the entertaining with the practical to a degree seldom attained even by the magazine of striking features. The leading article is entitled "Paradoxical Stories," and the most deadly explosives, while it is a man of peace, and spends much of his time in a secluded country home in New Jersey, in connection with this article there is a full-page illustration, showing Mr. Maxim and his two pet friends, Edwin Markham, and Will. Carlton. "Invited Guests" is another of Winthrop Packard's delightful "Wild Pasture" stories. "How a Library Woke Up a Town," by Sarah B. Askew, will be read with interest by every one concerned with village improvement. "A House Combining Brick and Stucco," "Clothing the Ornament for a Modern Home," "Sweet Blooms Next Spring," "Planting the Bulbs to Bloom Next Spring," "The Windows of the House," "Propagating Geraniums and other House Plants," "The Shower Bath in the Home," and "Fresh Air Poultry Houses," are the titles of some of the many helpful contributions of material in this issue.

The report of the Milk Problem, tells of a very satisfactory experiment made with milk goats by a Buffalo man. "The Rocking Chair Club" will be continued, and the juvenile members of the family will be interested in the story entitled, "How to Make a Gilding Machine." There are several columns of material in regard to canning and preserving fall fruits, as well as other household matters while the Automobile, Suburban Betterment, Amateur's Greenhouse, and Poultry Departments, will be found full of valuable suggestions.

The United States raises an average of 25 bushels of potatoes per acre on our rich soil, hundreds of thousands of acres of which have barely been scratched, and English farmers who have been tilling their soil for centuries raise 234 bushels, Ireland raises 237 bushels, Belgium 244 bushels and Germany 215.

Remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Bolster, a former pastor of the church, Rev. L. W. Norton, of the Universalist church, and resolutions were submitted by Rev. H. C. Alvord and were adopted, thanking the Post Co. for the cane given to Weymouth's oldest citizen.

The church decorations were in charge of Mrs. White Field and too much can not be said of the high art and good taste displayed by her and her assistants. The report of Mrs. M. R. Lord, secretary and treasurer, was a compliment to the retiring board and cheering to their successors.

The following is a list of those at the dining tables:
Mrs. George Andrews, 82
Mrs. Priscilla A. Barrows, 79

Pear Culture.
In its crop report for September, recently issued, the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "The Culture of the Pear," by George T. Powell, of Ghent, N. Y. Copies of this bulletin may be obtained by applying to Sec. 2, Louis Ellsworth, Room 120, State House, Boston, Mass., and those requesting it may have their names placed on the mailing list to receive future issues.

Mr. Powell says in introduction: "The pear is one of the very desirable fruits and one that is not produced in sufficient quantities to supply the demand for it. It is somewhat more difficult to grow than the apple, suffers under neglect, and hence is not found on many farms, even in garden culture, in many instances. It will, however, well repay those who will select a suitable piece of land and plant pear trees, bringing to them the care they require. The tree is not so subject to insect attacks as the apple tree, but the pear blight is at times very hard to control, and causes heavy losses upon orchards. It is only necessary to know the right conditions and follow right methods, that this most excellent fruit, now mainly a luxury, may be grown with profit over a much wider territory."

Mr. Powell then proceeds to take up and discuss the essentials of the proper culture of the pear, under the headings:—The soil, preparation of the land for an orchard, planting the trees, varieties of standard trees, dwarf trees, distance to plant dwarf trees, cultivation, pruning, insect blight, insects and marketing. In speaking of pear blight he says that blight has swept down the pear orchards so largely in all sections of the country, and particularly on the Pacific coast, that the supply of the fruit is now short, and prices are ruling high for it. Vigilance in cutting down diseased and marketing is particularly in winter pruning, will, however, control the disease and save the trees to a large degree.

In closing Mr. Powell says: "There are few sections of our country where better pears are grown than in the territory lying within forty miles of Boston. The soil and climate conditions are most excellent, the fruit thrives, and the fruit is of the best in every point of the quality. Other sections of the State have good conditions for this fruit, and a pear industry may be built up that will have large financial value."

Picking apples. It is best not to pick winter fruit during very warm days. Do the work before ten o'clock in the morning, or wait until a cooler day. More than one picker will pick fruit that is wet, not pack it while it is wet. Some care to tell anyone who is interested just what Doan's Kidney Pills did for me. I obtained the remedy from the Weymouth Pharmacy.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Susannah Tufts Chapter, D. A. R.
—The eleventh session opened on Monday afternoon, Sept. 27 with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Walker F. Jones in Weymouth fifteen members present.
Mrs. F. O. Sterling, presided. After the usual opening exercise, the various reports were read and accepted, followed by the reading of a letter from Mrs. Pettit of the W. C. T. U. Settlement School in Hindman, Kentucky, asking for a continuance of the two scholarships given last year. Much discussion was caused as to the means of raising the necessary amount. Mrs. Cate suggested a penny collection at each meeting and it was so decided.
Mrs. A. G. Bowditch and Mrs. C. T. Crane were chosen delegates to the D. A. R. Conference to be held in Pittsfield, Oct. 12 and 13.
Two new members were elected. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a delightful afternoon passed. Meeting adjourned till the last Monday in October when Mr. Will Hall of Weymouth will act as hostess.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.
A handsome Blaine and Logan flag has been thrown to the breeze in Columbian Square, and an increasing interest is manifest at the headquarters. All the members of the Blaine and Logan club are urged to be present at the meeting tomorrow evening.

A meeting will be held at the headquarters of the Blaine and Logan club, East Weymouth, tomorrow, Saturday evening, to organize the torchlight company for the campaign. As forty have already pledged themselves to join, a good company will, undoubtedly, be started. Uniforms will be on hand ready for delivery on Saturday evening.

At the meeting of the Blaine and Logan Club of Weymouth, in Clapp's Hall, last Wednesday evening, a campaign battalion was organized, under the title of "The Ames Crates," the officers of which are: Capt. Charles E. Bicknell; 1st Lieut. David J. Pierce; 2d Lieut. H. L. White. The uniform adopted is white helmets, capes and leggings.

The Weymouth and East Braintree Democrats formed a Cleveland & Hendricks club at Williams Hall on last Saturday evening. Officers chosen are president, A. E. Avery; vice-presidents, B. F. Smith, J. W. Hart; secretary, H. S. Lord; treasurer, A. J. Bates; finance committee, J. W. Hart, H. S. Lord, A. J. Bates.

Comrades of Post 58 are reminded that the regular meeting of the Post next Tuesday evening will be held in the old Masonic Hall, East Weymouth, instead of the town hall. This is the first time the new headquarters have been open for meetings and this fact will no doubt draw out a larger attendance than usual.

The four villages of Weymouth are now connected by telephone lines, which improve the public are indebted largely to the efforts of Mr. F. Y. Gay, of East Weymouth, who has taken much interest in the work. As the Selectmen have reserved a right to place wires for a telegraphic fire alarm upon the poles, in case the town should vote to establish such an auxiliary, the construction of the alarm would be a easy matter.

The officers of the Agricultural Society are to be congratulated on the successful result of this year's fair and we hope that a good sum will be realized over and above the expenses. Many were heard to say on the grounds that the amount and variety of entertainment furnished by any fair of the kind in the state. The president, Mr. Alvah Raymond, worked night and day and the different committees were in earnest to succeed. The perfect weather brought some of the largest crowds to the grounds that had ever assembled there.

Old Colony Driving Club.
Track and weather conditions were all right on Saturday for the usual matinee of the Old Colony Driving club and a good number of people gathered to see the horses go.

The management arranged six classes and the horses were well enough matched to make it interesting and in some instances dead heats were the results, notably so in class D, which had three entries as per the following schedule and summary:

TELEPHONING TO THE COUNTRY.

THE EARLY FALL is the best time of the year to go to the Country or the Mountains.

It is also the busiest time of the year for the farmer.

The City and the Country are bound together by the TELE-

PHONE line.

The business man can go to the country and keep in daily touch with his city affairs by telephone.

He can converse with his family from or to either place.

The farmer can save himself extra labor, steps, and time in the harvesting and marketing of his crops by using the telephone. He can be in instant communication with the market, the town, or his neighbors.

He may travel far and still talk home over the Long Distance lines of the Bell System.

Good Underwear

So many men are dissatisfied with the Underwear they get. Most of the fault comes from careless buying. Such a good variety as we are showing makes a right selection easy.

We have Merino, Double Breasted and Single Breasted Fleece Lined and a Heavy Weight Jersey Ribbed at 48c a garment. Natural Wool Double Breasted at 98c. Glastenbury, Camel Hair both Double and Single Breasted at $1.50 a garment.

Contoosook "A" Shirts and Drawers $1.25. Contoosook "A A" Shirts and Drawers $1.50. Duofool at $1.25, $1.50, $2.00. Union Suits at 98c, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $3.00.

Hardly think you will want to look anywhere else after seeing our Special Line of Underwear.

GATHERED UP.

Fine feathers may not make fine birds, but a man's clothes may make him look like a jay

The things that make a man discontented are not what he has, but what he wants.

When a fellow tells a girl she is a dream, it is cruel to her to wake him up.

After a man is old enough to know right from wrong he still needs a lot of preaching to.

When a woman's face is her fortune she shouldn't have much trouble in getting through life on her cheek.

The greatest encyclopedia of all is the public. Next to the love of offering advice is that of disseminating information.

No nation is safe unless in the average family there are healthy, happy children. If these children are not brought up well they are not merely a curse to themselves and their parents, but they mean the ruin of the state in the future.

A man has been arrested in London for simply laying up something for a rainy day. In his room, over nine hundred umbrellas were discovered.

A man who will never admit that he is in the wrong is bad enough, but a good deal worse is the man who is willing to admit at any time that he is in the wrong and doesn't seem to mind it.

It's a white lie when mamma tells papa what baby has been saying, but when papa goes and repeats it at the office it's another matter; a lie becomes more or less solid by being mopped around.—Exchange.

Exchange—The jury—Citizen—"What possible excuse did you fellows have for acquitting that murderer? Juryman—"Insanity." Citizen—"What! The whole 12 of you?"

The man who concentrates all of his energy on one thing, whether it be railroading, selling goods, making wagons, or farming will succeed. His success may be modified by his ability, but there is not the slightest doubt about his winning in some degree if he follows his chosen line of work persistently and with the enthusiasm that is born of pride.

A man loves to be petted—at the right time, and then only. After all, there is not a man in the world who does not like to be "mothered" at times, and there is not a woman in the world who is not fond of mothering the man she loves. The solution of the whole problem consists of course, in knowing, or rather feeling, when to act in one way and when in another.

"Your future son-in-law has been telling me about his vast estates," said the friend of the family.

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I wish he'd quit reminding me of them."

"I should think you would be pleased." "Not at all. The vaster the estates the bigger the mortgages."—Washington Star.

One of the most characteristic aspects of the present time is the enlargement of opportunities of every kind and the increase of the number of them. Any young person who has courage, ability, and suitable training may now begin life with such opportunities as never invited or tempted the youth of any age before since the world began. All the world is open and youth has now everywhere to choose, and everywhere the invitation comes from nature and human life to enter upon the development and control of such forces physical, commercial, social, intellectual and religious, as were never presented before.

What the Editor Cannot Do.

Don't think because the reporter sees you getting on the train that he ought to know who you are and where you are going, or if he sees you greet some friends that he knows who they are and where they are from. We aim to get all the news, but you may be the one we don't happen to know. We try to become familiar with names and faces if possible, but during the years past, we have been to church and failed to see you there; we have hung around the town pump, but some of you weren't there; we have loitered on the street, we've even risked our reputation on back streets on a dark night, but you weren't all there. And we will be hanged if we know where to find you all. So if you are going or coming or know anybody cutting up queer capers let us know.—Norton (Kan.) Telegram.

He Fixed Up the Yard.

"Pretty fair-sized for the city," commented the country visitor as she looked out of one of the windows of the lower flat in a three-flat house, "but I guess you don't use it much."

"No," returned the city relative, "I don't use it at all."

"That's foolish," said the country visitor. "No one else seems to use it."

"No one else does."

"Of course, it's in bad shape now, but you might fix it up a little and it would be a splendid place for your children."

"Outdoor life, you know."

"I did have it fixed up."

"Really?"

"I paid $8 to have it cleaned, have the grass cut and have the whole place put in the best of order."

"Didn't it make your flat seem pleasant?"

"Well, no. I sat out there with the children the first afternoon but the next morning the woman in the flat above put out a croquet set and her bachelor boarder swung a hammock. Then the woman in the top flat tried to lay out a tennis court, and during the quarrel that followed as to which of the two women had the better right to the yard I retreated into the house. Then the woman next door brought over some old boxes to make a dollhouse for her children, and I was completely crowded out."

"But they don't use it now?"

"No. In forty-eight hours it looked worse than before, and now they all look at me as if I were a rather small kind of person for not keeping it fixed up. A nice yard in a city—well, I want an 8-foot rail fence around any I have, with bulldogs inside."—From the New York Press.

Put off your other engagements for tonight and attend the Rally at the Town Hall. Galleries for ladies.

The foot ball season is now on, and in all sections are that there will be something of a boom in the article trade.

The election is now but two weeks away and there are still quite a number of young men in Weymouth who might be entitled to cast a vote at that election but are not because they are not registered. Tonight and tomorrow are your last chances. Tonight you can meet the Registrars in the Hose House at Lovell's Corner, and tomorrow at the Selectmen's office from 12 m. to 1 p.m. Don't forget it.

The Safe Roads Automobile Association which is trying to do a good thing in the way of protecting the lives of pedestrians and others from accidents by reckless automobile drivers, has just issued instructions in regard to "sounding the horn," but what is the good of sounding the horn when the driver immediately takes it for granted that it is enough, opens up for more speed instead of being on his guard for a team driving in from across road or some pedestrian who is not physically able to jump and run.

W. R. C. Notes.

Weymouth Ladies of Reynold W. R. C. No. 102 will hold a food and candy sale in the rooms of A. S. Jordan & Co., Washington square, October 22 and 23 afternoons and evenings. Contributions gratefully received and your patronage solicited.

The Annual Inspection of Reynolds, W. R. C. No. 102 took place in G. A. R. Hall, East Weymouth, Tuesday afternoon October 12th.

Mrs. Emma Studley of Norwalk, Inspector. A large number of Corps No. 102 members and eighteen guests from several Corps were present. The work was well completed. The President presented the Inspector with a handsome dish from Corps No. 102. Supper was served at 6:30 by the Weymouth Ladies, followed by a social and entertainment in charge of Mrs. Agnes F. Baldwin. The entertainment consisted of piano solo by Mrs. Lucie R. Bagley, readings by Mrs. Carrie E. Loring, piano solo by Miss Vesta Ransoh, duet by Miss Agnes Baldwin and Miss Vesta Ransoh, speaking by Commander of Post 85, William Dunbar, reading by Comrades Oliver Burrell and Bradford Hawes, and several of the Comrades spoke words of encouragement.

Plymouth County Association, G. A. R. No. 102, will meet with Post and Corps at North Abington, Wednesday, October 29.

Whyte Pael.

A pretty home wedding occurred last Wednesday night at 85 Franklin street, Quincy when Miss Edith Pael was married to Mr. James S. Whyte. The rooms were tastefully decorated with autumn foliage and floral patterns. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. Walter Pael. Miss Louise Pael, a sister of the bride was maid of honor, while a niece, Miss Lora Pael, was flower girl. The groom was accompanied by Mr. Carl T. Cranahan of Quincy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. G. Scribner of the Methodist Episcopal church, East Weymouth, in which church Mr. Whyte is the leading bass singer.

After the wedding the large party of friends were entertained with music and singing, a male quartette consisting of Mr. Murphy, Mr. W. H. Pratt, Mr. Thorne and Mr. Whyte contributed several selections. Refreshments were served during the evening and at a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Whyte departed on a wedding trip and the good wishes of many friends and their return will mark their home on Middle street, East Weymouth.

The Beginnings of One Thousand Successful Men.

I have on my desk a list of 1000 successful men of this nation. By "successful" I do not mean mere money makers, but men who have given us new conceptions of steam, electricity, construction work, education, art, etc. These are the men who influence our moral as well as physical lives. They construct for better things.

How these men started in work is interesting. Their first foothold in work is a fine study.

Three hundred started as farmers. Some two hundred started as messenger boys. Two hundred were apprentices. One hundred were apprenticed in manufacturing.

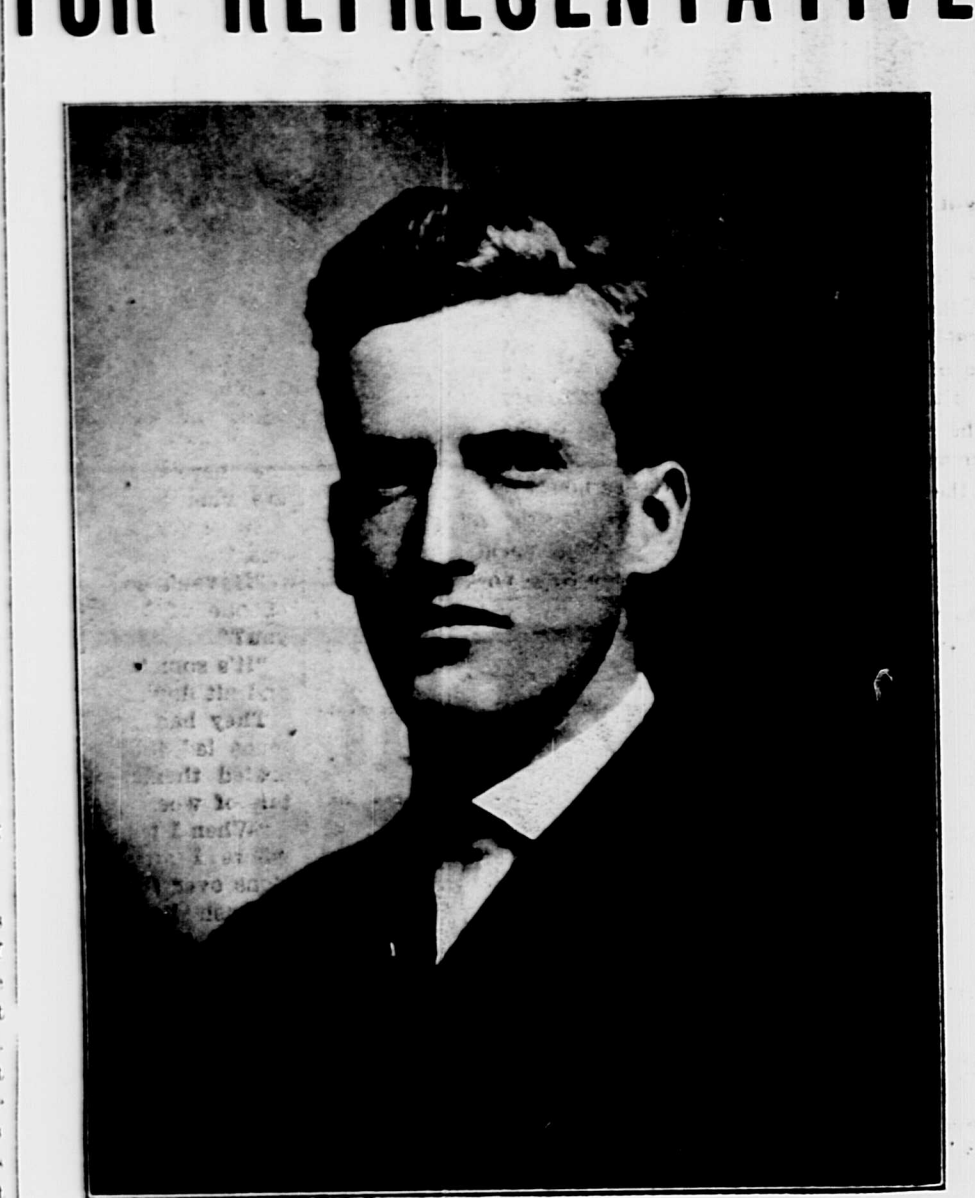

Fifty began at the bottom of railway work.

Fifty—only fifty—had wealthy parents to give them a start.

On the Luneta.

Oh, the best lights jig on the silver bay,
And how the tropic moon, in a solemn way,
The carriage wheels have stopped their wheels
As the land strikes up a tune.
Oh the couples linked on the big parade
Stand still; and light as foam
The soft notes blend, to the eager end,
As the hand plays "Home Sweet Home";
The war boats riding the harbor's breast
Hang still on the highest swell;
And the clunk junks, too, have stopped their wheels
As the soft notes weave their spell.
The laughter stops in the barracks halls
And the sentries pause to hear.
As the old, old air comes sweet as prayer
With its lid for the silent tear.
The bright lights fade in a purple mist,
And the thoughts have gone askew.
While the handmen play in a solemn way
(For the hand is thinking, too.)
Ay, the bright lights fade on the grand parade,
And the chattering words seem dead;
While faces grave turn to the wave
With a longing—left unsaid.
The outposts hear on their lonely watch,
For the evening air is still;
And the strains ride far as the nearest star
That shines on yonder hill.
They carry away to the fringing lines
By the city of green and chrome—
And a vague unrest stirs every breast
When the hand plays "Home Sweet Home."

REPUBLICAN TOWN COMMITTEE OF WEYMOUTH

(Adv.) George L. Barnes, Chairman.

Harvest Festival.
The Town Hall was well filled with people last Friday night at the opening of the season which was a Harvest Festival under the auspices of the Holy Name Society connected with the Immaculate Conception church.

The galleries and stage were prettily decorated with harvest symbols such as Indian corn, fruit and many colored leaves, large chandeliers and the several electric chandeliers and above the stage was the Holy Name inscription worked out in colors with autumn leaves.

The affair opened with a concert program by Miss Burke's orchestra and other features as per the following:
Soprano, Burke's orchestra; cornet solo, Mr. Burke; vocal and instrumental act, Silva and Rowell Sisters; comedy and musical act, Frank Phillips; zythophone solo, Robert Peterson; reading, M. T. Scott; comedy sketch, Joyce and Joyce; march, orchestra.

Between numbers 5 and 6 of the program, Rev. Maurice Lynch spoke at quite a length on the victory of William Hackett of North Weymouth in the Brooklyn Marathon Run. Mr. Hackett ran under the insignia of the Holy Name society, and his friends in the society presented him with a solid gold watch chain and charm, suitably inscribed, while the audience cheered to the limit. Mr. Hackett's trophy was on exhibition throughout the evening.

After the concert, refreshments were served in the lower hall and the remainder of the evening until one o'clock was spent in dancing. Miss Burke's orchestra furnished the music. A card party was held in the lower hall for those not wishing to dance, and at one o'clock special car conveyed the guests to their homes. The proceeds will assist in the expenses of repairing the church.

The several members were much enjoyed and received well merited applause. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruits followed the concert program and were in charge of Mrs. C. Will Burley, chairman, Mrs. Charles T. Humphrey, Mrs. Geo. C. Drew, Mrs. Melzar S. Burrell and Mrs. Frederick Cate, and at the same time Mrs. Harriet B. Hatchelder and Miss McGee presided over a coffee table which was well patronized.

The usual dance was the closing feature of the night, and at a little after 11 o'clock good night words were said and the Gentlemen's Night of the Monday Club for 1909 had become a matter of history.

Wilcox—Sewell

A pretty October wedding took place last Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dummer Sewell on Congress street when their daughter Jessie was united in marriage to Mr. Francis Wilcox of Abington. The parlor was prettily trimmed with ferns, flowers and autumn leaves and the couple stood beneath a large dossal bell while the ceremony was performed by Rev. Melvin S. Nash pastor of the Universalist church in the presence of the immediate relatives of the couple. The bride was attired in a handsome costume of white silk and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Rose T. Farnham, a large dossal bell while the ceremony was performed by Rev. Melvin S. Nash pastor of the Universalist church in the presence of the immediate relatives of the couple. The bride was attired in a handsome costume of white silk and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Guests were present from Boston, Brockton, Abington, Whitman, Quincy, Rockland, Braintree and other places. The couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly gifts. On the return from their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox will reside on Bedford street, Abington.

Falling Leaves.

Amidst the Indian-savory haze
The forest's regal hues unfold
With richest crimson, cloth of gold,
Russet and scarlet, all ablaze.
How quickly have the days flown by Since Spring her first faint colors threw
In pure relief against the blue
Of charming April's sunny sky!

The budding white oak's rosy tint
The summer changed to vivid green;
The slender birch's silvery gleam
Was heightened by the sunbeam's gleam.
Now soon each leaf all sear and browned,
With cutting wind and biting frost,
By ruthless autumn torn and tossed,
Will fall and wither on the ground.

But tiny rosebuds are hidden there
To show forth beauty by and by;
Sheltered from winter's winds they lie,
Although each limb and branch be bare.
And so our lives must bud and grow,
Warmed by the sunshine of God's love,
Showered by mercies from above,
Till we in health and beauty glow.

Thus 'mid the frosts of sorrow, still
We shelter those lives yet to come.
And when we fall, our voices dumb,
They live to do the Father's will.

Shoe Industry.

As if in answer to the complaints of shoe sellers that the mild weather is retarding the fall sales, come the rumors of cold and sudden frosts, sending as a warning to the "grasshoppers" that winter is to be reckoned with, and that heavy shoes must speedily take the place of the thin-soled articles yet being worn.

This delay on the part of customers to buy from the retail stores is noticed in the business of the shoe salesman as they go among the wholesalers and retailers. The justice of the position of the shoe manufacturers in refusing to lower their prices is beginning to be conceded, but still the buyers are holding off. The best influence that can affect them, now, is colder weather, sufficient to set the heavy fall and winter goods in the retail stores moving. Activity at that end will stimulate all along the line.

That there is a growing improvement in shoe making is a fact which is being well established. Factories are receiving belated fall orders, the goods to be delivered as early as possible. Medium-priced staple lines are receiving more attention, and factories are in better shape, though running below the capacity.

Business in the next season lines seem to be waking. Salesmen carrying men's medium and fine grade shoes are now getting orders through the West and Middle West, and prospects are daily growing brighter. There is improvement in the sale of better grades of women's wear for spring and summer, and the call is especially for pumps and ankle-strap variety, for oxford with one and two straps, in patent and dull leathers.

The shoe and leather industries are in most unwholesome condition seems only too apparent. When such human needs as the covering for the feet depend on markets which are invaded by the demands of industries than the necessities, and thereby rob the market of goods required for the necessities of life, it would seem as if new and powerful influences should be brought to bear to restore the proper balance of conditions.

TROPICAL INSECTS.

The Tarantula is the One Most to be Dreaded.

Excepting only the tarantula, the crawling insects of the tropics are not really dangerous, though they are more than unpleasant, sufficiently so to make every one wary, and an instinctive watchfulness becomes after a time habitual. It is only a matter of being careful and dangerous stings can be avoided. The sting of a scorpion is sharp and painful. Rapid swelling follows till a great lump is formed at and about the wound, the glands often become inflamed and painful, and the tongue swells so that speech may become difficult. The pain lasts from two to twenty-four hours, usually about a day, and it is exceptional if any serious effects follow.

The centipedes attack by burying their sharp feet in the flesh and then biting with its jaws, inflicting deep wounds. When it goes on crawling rapidly over the flesh, puncturing it with burning, needlelike feet, biting continually, its jaws buried deep in the flesh with vigorous rapidity. This is a serious affliction. The centipede's back is so smooth and its muscles so supple that it can check it under one's clothing requires fortitude which could press a red-hot iron against the back. It is so smooth and its muscles so supple that it can check it under one's clothing requires fortitude which could press a red-hot iron against the back.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. J. F. Pyne, 39 Middle St., Waltham, Mass., says: "I was troubled a great deal by pains across the small of my back. My kidneys were weak and the secretions became distressing in passage. Sharp twinges darted through my body when I stooped or lifted and I was very restless at night, arising in the morning as tired as when I went to bed. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began their use. They gave relief immediately and in a short time cured me. I have also given this remedy to my children for weakness of the kidneys and the best possible results have followed. I strongly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills." (Statement given in 1898)

A LASTING EFFECT.

TROPICAL INSECTS.

The Tarantula is the One Most to be Dreaded.

Excepting only the tarantula, the crawling insects of the tropics are not really dangerous, though they are more than unpleasant, sufficiently so to make every one wary, and an instinctive watchfulness becomes after a time habitual. It is only a matter of being careful and dangerous stings can be avoided. The sting of a scorpion is sharp and painful. Rapid swelling follows till a great lump is formed at and about the wound, the glands often become inflamed and painful, and the tongue swells so that speech may become difficult. The pain lasts from two to twenty-four hours, usually about a day, and it is exceptional if any serious effects follow.

The centipedes attack by burying their sharp feet in the flesh and then biting with its jaws, inflicting deep wounds. When it goes on crawling rapidly over the flesh, puncturing it with burning, needlelike feet, biting continually, its jaws buried deep in the flesh with vigorous rapidity. This is a serious affliction. The centipede's back is so smooth and its muscles so supple that it can check it under one's clothing requires fortitude which could press a red-hot iron against the back. It is so smooth and its muscles so supple that it can check it under one's clothing requires fortitude which could press a red-hot iron against the back.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. J. F. Pyne, 39 Middle St., Waltham, Mass., says: "I was troubled a great deal by pains across the small of my back. My kidneys were weak and the secretions became distressing in passage. Sharp twinges darted through my body when I stooped or lifted and I was very restless at night, arising in the morning as tired as when I went to bed. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began their use. They gave relief immediately and in a short time cured me. I have also given this remedy to my children for weakness of the kidneys and the best possible results have followed. I strongly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills." (Statement given in 1898)

Funeral services will be held in the chapel of the Congregational church this afternoon, Rev. E. L. Bradford officiating with singing by the Hayden quartet. Deceased was a member of Crescent Lodge I.O.O.F., which will escort the remains to Fairmont cemetery and hold services at the grave. Mr. Tirrell leaves a widow, two brothers, Josiah and Augustus and a sister, Mrs. C. W. Ball.

—The opening of the gunning season Saturday found many hunters in the woods. A few good bags were reported.

—The smelts have arrived in the Back river and every tide finds many fishermen at the fishing grounds.

—Gladys Denbroeder is ill with diphtheria.

—The annual convention of the Sunday school association of the East Norfolk District was held at the Bethany church, Wednesday. A fine program was arranged and those attending the convention from the Methodist and Congregational churches of this place thought it one of the best of the season.

—The first meeting for the season of the Fairmont cemetery circle was held with Mrs. Charles Harrington at her home on Shawmut street, Thursday afternoon.

—Miss Sadie Ford, the popular and experienced nurse is having a two week's vacation which is being spent in studying institutions at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

—Methodist Episcopal Church Notes.

Sunday school service as Italy Day. All members of the Sunday school are requested to be present. Mr. Clarence Fearing of South Weymouth will address the school at 12 o'clock.

—The first of a series of meetings to be given on Sunday evening, ostensibly to throw light on some of the great questions of the day, was held in the audience room of the church last Sunday evening. The number of people seeking light was not particularly large, but they listened to some excellent singing by the large choir and devotional exercises by the pastor, at the conclusion of which Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union and also connected with the Citizens League, was introduced as the speaker of the evening. The speaker gave some stereotyped talk on shorter hours and higher wages as a means of uplift to humanity. In place of ex-representative Carey of Haverhill, who was announced as the speaker for next Sunday night Mr. George E. Gallup, New England representative of the Comptonian and president of New England Publicity association will speak.

—The ladies' social circle connected with this church had its first meeting of the season on Wednesday. A few ladies gathered in the parlors after the afternoon service for the Fair which is to be held early in December. At 6.30 a most excellent supper was served by Mrs. Charles Humphrey, assisted by Mrs. Ernest McFawn, Mrs. George Whitcomb, Mrs. Lawrence Drew, Mrs. W. Lincoln Pratt, Mrs. George Batchelder, Mrs. Wallace Cowing, Mrs. Charles Stoddard, Mrs. Herbert

ON THE FARM.
Never tolerate a man on a farm who kicks, kicks or whips a horse.
In matching up the work teams mate them in size, weight and disposition as nearly as possible.
If the straw-horned isn't clean as a whistle when it goes into winter quarters this fall, you won't winter very long over your berries next June.
Fruit stones for sowing should be washed clean and placed in boxes of damp sand until wanted. This is especially so in the case of the plum, which is subject to rotting. Planting may be done in late fall or early spring.
To insure a crop of large eggs the raiser must select each fall the hens that lay the desired size, and it is these birds only that should be retained for breeders, all others that do not measure up to the standard being disposed of. Size and color of egg is simply a matter of selection through several generations, and the trait will become firmly established along the desired lines.
Prof. Coburn says that we Americans feed our horses entirely too much hay. It is common among horse owners to let horses stand full mangers when not at work. But in London the hay horse, for example, is given hay but for two hours a day, in the evening. At the end of two hours the mangers are cleared. Careful testing in decreasing the timothy hay ration one-half has not shown that the horses require any more grain than before to keep them in equally good condition.
It should be remembered as a basis for guidance that the maximum yield of any crop is determined and gauged by the fertilizer element which the soil contains in the least quantity. In other words, soil may be rich in nitrogen and phosphorus, but very poor in potash. The yield of grain or hay on that farm will be determined by the amount of potash which the soil contains. In other words, the excess amount of nitrogen and phosphorus will not make up for the deficiency in potash.
Untimely severe frosts sometimes damage the corn crop so that its marketable value is considerably lowered, but in this event as in other cases the hog comes to the rescue. Says Coburn in Swine in America, "Soft corn is considered excellent for swine, and especially for the young; in fact, many breeders believe they can obtain better gains from soft corn than with the sound, hard grain. In soft corn the maturing of the grain has been checked, thereby arresting the development of the starch content or fat-producing element.
The best time for the principal pruning of grape vines is soon after the leaves drop in autumn, but pruning can be done at any time during the winter when the vines are not frozen. Summer pruning consists in pinching lateral branches in order to encourage the development of the fruit and the bearing wood for the succeeding year. The pruning for the first two years must be done with reference to the system under which the vine is to be trained after it begins fruiting. During this time the vine should become thoroughly established.
When years can be readily and smoothly parted from the branch by bending gently to one side, they are ready to be gathered. Handle them carefully and do not break the stems. Sweet peas, and those that become brittle, should be gathered as soon as the skin changes from a dark to a light color. If the fruit is to be ripened quickly and for market, place them upon the floor of a dry, cool room in medium-sized piles. In a few days assort them and place all good-sized, well-shaped ones in boxes. The fruit should be handled by hand, and not poured into the baskets or boxes.
It behooves the farmer to do something more than to adopt the means of getting the largest output from the soil. That is essential, but it is also essential that he should know how to market his crops as well as to grow them. The consumer must likewise study the means of meeting the farmer half way, and so far as possible, help to abolish all unnecessary impediments between the hand of one and the mouth of the other. The cost of living has become so excessive in the United States that a study of the means of reducing it is the most important and engrossing problem that confronts the nation.
A cool spot should be selected for packing apples. It does not necessarily have to be in a shed, under the shade of the trees is just as good. An apple hanging on a tree out in the sun is hot, and if it is put in a barrel just as it comes off the tree it is in much greater danger of rotting. A barrel of apples generates heat, and it should be left some time before it is put in cold storage, writes an expert in answer to a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. Great care should be exercised in packing apples. Some men intentionally—I wish that I might say otherwise—put the largest apples in the ends of the barrel. This deceives the buyer—once. When a buyer is unpacking a barrel and finds large specimens in the ends and only culls in the middle he loses his enthusiasm over what he has bought. An he resolves not to be "stung" again. When you put the wormy apples in the middle you are throwing your bread down stream.
WORK THAT COUNTS.
There is always work enough to do on the farm, but at some seasons things do not press quite as hard as they do at others. These periods of relaxation may well be employed in something which will make the farm better.
On our farm for a number of years after the stress of haying and harvesting was over, we turned our attention to clearing up a piece of land which had grown up to small timber and brush. When we came on the place, now some twenty years ago, we found this piece of land so densely grown up with briars and small trees that it was with difficulty that the cattle could get through it. It furnished little in the way of feed.
This stuff we cut off stick and clean sawing the trunks of the little trees up for wood and piling the brush nicely. With an old bush scythe we mowed the briars off close to the ground and heaped them, too, with the brush piles. Later after the danger from fire running was over, we burned these heaps and drew the wood away. You have no idea what a change this made in that field. The white clover came in everywhere white and nice. The sheep and cows have had that part of the pasture as their favorite stamping ground ever since.

While there may not be such fields on every farm, nevertheless there is always some such job that may be done to improve the place. It may be some bit of swamp to drain or a ditch to put down. Whatever it is, do it well, and it surely will add many dollars to the value of the farm.—Agricultural Epitome.
Should Sound the Horn.
The Safe Roads Automobile Association has issued a letter in which it calls attention to the necessity of more careful observance by drivers of automobiles of that part of the law requiring the giving of a warning signal when approaching intersecting ways, curves and corners. The letter is as follows:
Careful investigation during nearly two and a half years has shown that the most serious cause of automobile accidents is due directly to failure on the part of operators approaching "blind" corners and curves, especially in the country, where the average speed is higher than in cities and towns, to sound a warning signal, as is now required by Acts of 1909, chapter 534, section 14: "Upon approaching an intersecting way or a curve or corner in a way where the operator's view is obstructed every person operating a motor vehicle shall slow down and give a timely signal with his bell, horn or other device for signaling."
Many skilled operators do not signal, and the misguided belief that is an admission of want of skill on their part, while in fact it is merely an evidence of careful and decent driving.

MY LADY'S BRACELET
By GRACE ETHEL WEEKS.

Zeke Jenks, a native of Missouri, at twenty years of age lost his father and gained thereby a farm. Not finding the state big enough for him, he sold his farm and went to Texas, where he invested the proceeds in oil territory, of which the Octopus Oil Company kindly relieved him for a consideration. Zeke took the consideration to New York, where he became a great stock and cotton speculator and by the time he was thirty was worth so many millions that he didn't know what to do with them.
Meanwhile Zeke, having determined to see something besides his own country, went to London, where he kept house in the style. Having some of the acquaintances of several impetuous noblemen who gave him introductions (for consideration), it was not long before he found himself a member of the celebrated society headed by the king of England. Certain professional beauties of the British capital, without stopping to consider the origin of his accumulations, proceeded to lay plans to transfer as much of them as possible to themselves. A few preliminary efforts in the way of moderate amounts were so successful as to encourage them to strike for something higher.
Among the reigning belles of that season—married belles, not young ladies; the belles of London usually consisted in marrying with husbands—was Lady Arabella Richmond. Twenty years before her mother had been so favorably noticed by the king as to be unfavorably noticed by his wife, the queen. Lady Arabella had inherited a number of splendid jewels and when she wished to crush a rival would put them all on at some aristocratic function.
But unfortunately, the beauty's expenditures being greater than her income, she was obliged now and again to sacrifice a gem, and at the time Zeke Jenks appeared on the London social stage she had reached a point where her stock of jewels needed replenishing. Indeed, without certain additional help from the outside, she was among the first to take up "that unique American, Mr. Jenks," who by this time was the talk of the town. Furthermore, a rival had appeared from the American colony in the person of Miss Lillian Lee, a native of Maryland, whose beauty, delightful manners and naturally amiable disposition was slowly making her a favorite. Notwithstanding these advantages Miss Lee could not have rivalled the highborn Lady Richmond had not the latter reached an age where even cosmetics failed to preserve her beauty. The charm of the whole matter was that Miss Lee did not seek to rival any one and was uncomplainingly content to let the world whisper that she would be at the head of the reigning belles at no distant date.
It was at this time that Lady Arabella was winding her tentacles about Zeke Jenks. He had been growing more and more devoted and gave every evidence that he was not only enraptured with the position he occupied before the London social world, but with Lady Richmond herself. One day he called upon her at the hour for afternoon tea to ask a favor.
Dreading, he said, to make some acknowledgment to a lady of high social standing who had graciously accepted his attentions, he asked Lady Richmond to name a gift that would be acceptable. It being obvious that Lady Richmond herself was to be the recipient, she eagerly complied. She was, however, a trifle surprised. Mr. Jenks gave her a limit of $5,000. The end of a week's inspection the lady gave a jeweler an order to send a bracelet set with a single diamond to the American, which would be acceptable. ### GATHERED UP.

If industry is no more than a habit, it is at least an excellent one.

Some men are so rich that they even seem to think they can pay their respects in dollars.

Men cannot think permanently one way six days a week and in another way on Sunday.

It is quite natural that a fellow will never have a show unless he has the price of admission.

Considering how small some men are, it is wonderful how they can contain such big opinions of themselves.

There are many different terms for chauffeur. Some of them will readily come to mind about the time you get bumped by a machine.

A man who slips on a banana peeling, then arises and without waste of words or ruffled temper, removes the peeling so that others may not slip on it is a Christian.

"Mr. Growell," began the visitor, "I don't want to disturb you."

"Very considerate of you to come in here just to tell me that," said the busy man. "I appreciate it, sir. Good day."

A girl in New York State sent fifty cents to a Chicago firm recently for a receipt it advertised for soft hands. The receipt was to the effect that she soak her hands in dishwater three times a day while her mother rested.

None but the fully occupied can appreciate the delight of suspended, or rather, of varied labor. It is toil that creates holidays. There is no royal road—yes, that is the royal road to them. Life cannot be made up of recreations. They must be garden spots in well farmed lands.

"At this height," said the guide, as they paused on the mountain side to look at the valley far below, "people with weak hearts often die."

"How often," asked a deeply interested listener, "do they have to die before they stay dead?"—Chicago Tribune.

Diogenes, lantern in hand, entered the village drug store. "Say, have you anything that will cure a cold?" he asked.

"No, sir, I have not," answered the pill complier.

"Give me your hand," exclaimed Diogenes, dropping his lantern, "I have at last found an honest man."

"Don't take it so hard," said the sympathizing friend. "Remember that your daughter is married, you have not lost her."

"I know," sobbed the bride's mother. "That's the trouble. Julia and her husband have already picked out the best room in the house for theirs."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Jacob A. Riis was talking about witty newspaper headlines.

"As witty a headline as I know of," said he, was written by a youth of eighteen in a San Francisco newspaper office. There was a bill up to prohibit the sale of alcoholic drinks within four miles of the University of California, and this bill the youth headed:

"An Act to Promote Palesterianism Among Our Students."—Washington Star.

Some of the sailors in Uncle Sam's navy, a very fair proportion of them, are saving money these days and "salting it down" for the possible rainy days of old age. For example the Jack Tate at the naval station in New York in the year ending Sept. 1, 1909, drew $12,000,000 in wages. Of this large sum $2,000,000 was deposited with the paymaster by 7700 of the sailors and at the same time $1,500,000 was sent to their families by 6300 others. The day of reckoning, rollicking, drink-loving, trouble-making, spendthrift sailors is evidently becoming a thing of the past.

HOW HE MANAGED

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."—New York Press.

NOT INTERESTED.

"I have called," said the book agent, "to see if I can interest you in a little work."

"Young man," snapped the woman who answered the door, "just now I am interested in washing my dishes, dusting, cleaning up after the paper-hanger, making six beds, polishing the hardwood floors, ironing my husband's shirts, getting two more meals today, darning nine pairs of stockings and stringing my sweet peas, and I might say that that's more work than you men ever thought of doing. No; you can't interest me in any more."—Detroit Free Press.

Courage.

How often do we hear the admonition, "Keep your head above water." The best way to fulfill the injunction is to keep the spirit above. Courage, hope, what can a man not do with these? What is he able to do without them? Courage is an elixir of life, giving power both to mind and body. It strengthens the sinews, it revivifies the spirit. It makes life, indeed, worth living.

"But," it may be asked, "how can a person gain courage who is not born with it?" There are two requisites: 1. He must believe that what he is doing is worth doing. 2. He must feel that of all things in the world, it is the thing that calls him. With these convictions he is equipped with weapons that shall level every obstacle, make a path through every maze—four of these are born courage and faith. All common things, each day's events, that with hour begin and end, our pleasures and our discontents, are rounds by which we may ascend. —Christian Advocate.

What "Practical Politics" a paper that keeps in touch with the actions and work of legislators at the State House has to say of Representative

John F. Dwyer

This record, along with a perfect labor record and the customary courtesy of extending to a Representative a second term, is why we think he should be re-elected.

If there was a session of the house this year when Rep. John F. Dwyer of Weymouth was not in his seat and alert to the business of the day, the occasion missed the watchful eyes of observers in the press gallery. If there was a hearing before the committee on banks and banking when Dwyer of Weymouth failed to hear all the evidence, failed to give it patient consideration, or failed to be recorded, that fact, too, escaped observation. Which, after all, is merely a roundabout and verbose way of saying that the legislative record of Rep. Dwyer may well be taken as a model by first year lawmakers on Beacon hill.

Rep. Dwyer obtained some renown late in the year as the one democrat in the legislature who voted for the Boston charter bill. And yet here, again, his course was that of the man who means every word of his oath of office and who gives his commensurate to the best there is in him. Rep. Dwyer voted for every one of the more than a dozen amendments to the charter bill offered by his colleagues from the city of Boston. Every democrat who had some fault to find with the charter bill as it was reported from committee found in John Dwyer a faithful ally and a certain vote.

These amendments voted down, Rep. Dwyer voted for the bill itself, because, in his judgment, as in that of many prominent and influential democrats, Boston's need of a new charter had been demonstrated beyond all question.

The committee on banks and banking was an unusually busy committee this year. Of all the committees of the legislature, perhaps, attracted so much widespread attention as the bill which placed one of the incorporated small loans houses under the supervision of the bank commissioner.

MAJOR GRAHAM AND OTHERS.

A Conspiracy That Resulted in Complete Success.

By CLAY ARMSTRONG.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary

Major George Graham, retired army officer, had been a widower for ten years. His daughter Nellie was nineteen years old.

The major realized that he was growing old, but when it came to the daughter he continued to regard her as a child. Even when she got into long dresses he would not have been a bit surprised to find her walking the fence with a balancing pole or seated on the limb of a cherry tree. She had been away at school; she had returned; he knew that she went to parties, and he saw young men about the house, but he seemed to be in a dream about her age. In his thoughts she had not passed the ring old stage yet.

Major Graham was enjoying his dinner on the veranda one evening and listening to Nellie's chatter in an adjacent room when a young woman came in and made a sudden dash into the house and took the vacant chair. The major squinted at him and thought he recognized him as young Hurlburt.

A young man's name may be much or little to the father of the girl he is in love with. In this case it meant little, until an explanation had been entered into. Then it meant a whole lot. Young Mr. Hurlburt loved Miss Nellie; Miss Nellie loved him. He was a good family and had some good money; he knew she was an only child and realized how hard it would be for the father to give her up, but he would love, protect and cherish her always.

The major was so shocked that in his excitement he threw away a cigar that had been only half consumed, a thing he had not done in battle with the zums roaring around him.

Just what the man of war said to the young man of peace need not be recorded here. The gist of it was that his daughter was still a child, young Hurlburt was only a "kid," and that he should put his foot down against any nonsense. Yes, sir, it must be stopped. Yes, sir, he would tell his daughter so. Yes, sir, and—and—and so forth. And the young man told him of a human wreck, and Miss Nellie, who, of course, had heard all from an open window, sought out her good aunt and hurried her face in the lap of that individual and moaned out: "Oh, Aunt Mary, I shall die—I know I shall die! Father won't let Will and me get married!"

Aunt Mary tried to explain to her, but she had never favored the young man. She gave what comfort and sympathy she could, and after seeing the weeping girl, she decided that she should try to get the father in an attempt to soften his heart.

The major was wanting some one to talk to just then, and she got all that was coming to her. She had been a widow, she had been a mother, she had neglected her duties as a chaperon, she had almost brought a calamity upon the house of Graham. With her eyes wide open she had allowed a mere infant—yes, ma'am, an infant—to fall in love and engage herself in marriage to—to—well, to a young man.

In vain, Aunt Mary tried to explicate herself. No one had ever talked back to Major Graham, U. S. A., and got the best of it, and she failed. He would not listen to her words, and the odds were too great, even for a woman's tongue. She retired from the contest to say to the fearful maiden in waiting:

"If your father doesn't get over this and talk sense I'll—"

"You'll do something, Aunt?"

"I don't know what I'll do, but you will. Here you are, nineteen years old, and he's talking as if you were not out of baby and high chairs."

There was hope that if Aunt Mary went around with a serious look on her face and had her eyes on the girl, the daughter would wait with tears in her eyes and heaved heartbreaking sighs at intervals the major might come down off his high horse, but after three days of it he seemed more determined than ever. Finally, at the end of a week, the sister said:

"George, if that girl elopes to get married, you will have only yourself to blame."

"So children have taken to eloping, eh?" he replied in cutting tones.

"That night when I was meeting of conspirators in Miss Nellie's room. There were only two conspirators, but they were enough. The major was asleep and dreaming of battle as they plotted, and he had no more tears, no more sighs. Next morning a letter was sent to young Hurlburt. That night he disappeared off the face of the earth.

The next night also good Aunt Mary was engaged for two hours carrying bundles and other things up into the attic, and when morning dawned again another bundle was now ready for Mr. Major George Graham, retired.

He was eating his breakfast when his sister entered the dining room to announce that Nellie had had a letter, and escaped during the night. The explanation made by the major when a bullet killed his horse was repeated on this occasion, and a minute later he was upstairs.

"I predicted it," observed the sister as she followed at his heels.

"Look for a note," he replied.

"I have looked. The postchild left none. She let herself be driven from home by a cruel father, and how could she write?"

Young Hurlburt had just become the junior member of a firm in New York town. Major Graham walked into the office and demanded information of his whereabouts. He was told that the young man had gone camp. He went to the depot; he went to the police; he telegraphed here and there. Then he went home to wait for news and to say grimly to his sister that, while he would do everything possible to bring his daughter back, he would never, never forgive her. She had dishonored the name and must take the consequences.

The day passed and no news. It was the same with another day. The major was sorry that he had bluffed as he had. The sister took care to keep telling him what a cruel father he was and how much Nellie must have suffered before taking the step she had, and by evening of the second day the old war hero was calling him self names.

The scene was the veranda again. The major was smoking and sighing when young Hurlburt suddenly appeared. He was not shot down in his tracks. He was not even taken by the sister.

"Major, I understand you were inquiring for me the other day," he quietly remarked.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir. Where is my daughter, sir?"

"The last time I saw her was here at your house."

"And you tell me—your mean thashe and you did not even see her?"

"Elope," Major Graham, do you think I would coax your daughter into such a thing?"

"But she is gone. Whom did she go with?" Where is she?"

"I cannot tell you. I was off camping."

"Mr. Hurlburt, I refused you my daughter's hand, but at the same time I believed you an honorable young man."

"I believe I am, sir."

"And your daughter would do nothing to dishonor herself or her dear old daddy?" said Miss Nellie as she suddenly appeared and sank down at her father's knees.

"You—you back again?" he gasped.

"Why, I've not been away. I got tired of my room and moved up into the attic for a change. It's just lovely up there. You didn't think your Nellie would run away just because you were a little cross, did you?"

"See here, I don't understand this a bit," said the major as he recovered his senses.

And then came the last shock. His sister came running in, and he understood. "Why, brother, it's easy enough to understand. They are in love with each other and want your consent to their marriage."

The major wouldn't have been the major if he had given them his blessing then and there, but the records show that he did within the next month, and that was good enough.

An Anecdote of Verdi.

The first production of Verdi's opera "Otello" took place at Milan, and all the prominent musical critics of Europe were present in the Cathedral City in honor of the occasion. Among them was a Parisian journalist of wide reputation and admitted authority in the musical world. His first care on his arrival in Milan was to seek out Verdi and ask to be allowed to be present at one of the final rehearsals.

The composer received him with extreme politeness, but replied that he could not possibly grant his request, as he had decided that the rehearsals were to be absolutely private, and he could not make an exception in the favor of any one journalist, however distinguished.

The Paris critic, far from pleased at this answer, protested that such circumstances in his account of the opera might not be all he should like it to be. "You see," he explained to the composer, who affected not to understand, "I shall have to telegraph my article the same evening. It will necessarily be hastily written, and the impression in Paris the next day may suffer in consequence."

But Verdi was more than equal to the occasion. "My dear sir," he made answer, "I do not write for the next day." The critic bowed himself out.

So, after the loss of his son in the White Ship, Henry I. was never seen to smile again and lived only a short time. Henry VI. and George III. were insane during the latter years of their reigns and finally died from what in these days would be called mental disease. Charles II., Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Henry VII. hastened their deaths by the lives they lived. Only two monarchs died of great natural disease, consumption. They were Edward IV. and Henry VIII.

Queen Anne's death was due as much as anything else to overfeeding. Only two monarchs, Henry VI. and George III., died after long illnesses—London

ON THE FARM

The cows that give the most comfort are the ones that have the owner the most profit.

Money spent on house is wasted, spent on clothes is vanity, spent on food is gone, and food is gone is wicked; but money spent for seed or a fruit tree is wisely invested.

Look over the stable carefully before winter, remedy any defects and make it more comfortable, and in that way economize on feed during the coming winter.

Carrots, parsnips, turnips and beets keep best when packed in boxes or barrels. After packing in these receptacles to run down between the roots, shaking it down so that all the spaces will be filled.

If rye is sowed this fall as a green manure for potatoes next season, I believe it would be better to plow it under next spring after it gets a good start and not wait till it gets tall. Then the rye will rot better before plowing time and you will get more good from it.

In estimating the profit from the home flock of fowls the farmer seldom gives the poultry and eggs consumed by the family a value equal to that which would be reckoned if such things had to be purchased.

As a general thing, vegetables in storage require a cool atmosphere—but not cool enough to freeze. An exception, however, is the pumpkin and squash, which need a warm, dry air. They must be carefully handled in gathering, and the stem had best be left long. Squashes should not be stored until they are fully ripe.

It is just as easy—and cheaper—for the farmer to have roots on his table as to roast pork. The duck will not cost as much in proportion to the food consumed as the pork, while four pounds of the former can be put on the table eight weeks from the time the bird is hatched.

Cabbage intended to be used during the winter should be treated as follows: Cut off the stems and outer leaves, trim the heads about as much as if preparing to cook. Then wrap each head in several thicknesses of newspaper, so as to exclude the air. Pack the wrapped heads closely in a barrel, after lining the same with paper, and cover paper over the top; keep in the coolest part of the cellar; dampness will not injure the keeping.

It has been to buy poor grain. Use your own musty grain if necessary, scorching it in the oven to destroy the mold; but the best is the cheapest when it comes to buying. Corn charred in the oven is both good and wholesome for the fowls. It is all the better for a part of it to become blackened and charred.—Wallace's Farmer.

Dairymen all over the country are beginning to find out the great value of linseed meal and cottonseed meal as dairy feeds for the production of milk, and it has been found equally as good for laying hens.

Very rich or heavy feed should be given as an exclusive ration, hence cottonseed meal should not be fed alone, but in connection with green feeds and other light feeds.

What do I call this? Well, not the man who has the biggest bank account. I think some men skin their farms to get up money in the bank. I would rather put my profits
